Child-Focused In-Class Consultation

$649 per visit (2 hours)

An experienced speech pathologist or occupational therapist can visit your facility to offer in-class support and consultation, targeted around supporting a particular child or children in the group (with parent consent). The service helps everyone work together to solve challenges and build educator confidence in the setting where the child learns best. Following an initial phone call, the therapist will spend 2 hours in the centre, observe the group, watch the child with their routine and peers, and talk with educators about current supports and any extra skill-building needed.

This service can also help when a child has limited verbal skills or uses an AAC device, when a child is struggling with transitions, or when challenging behaviours are appearing in the Kindy environment.

During the visit, the therapist will share strategies, practical ideas and helpful tools/resources. When possible, they will model these in real time so educators can try them with confidence e.g. AAC training.

Fees cover a written summary following the visit, digital resources, planning, preparation and local travel fees (under 15 minutes). An added fee applies for larger personalised resources.

Screenings will cover pre-prep areas of articulation, understanding and use of language, and early literacy for speech pathology.
